Weather

Cyprus enjoys year round sun, with almost every day being fine and dry. In the height of summer there is a cooling breeze on the east coast and cooler temperatures inland toward the mountainous Troodos.

Summer begins in early May and continues through to October; during this time it is warm enough, almost every day, to enjoy a dip in the sea or a day by the pool.

Even in winter you can expect an average of six hours of sunshine a day. Come March temperatures quickly reaching 70°F during the daytime. The cooler months of January and February carry the most chance of rain but you can still expect your fair share of sunshine then too.
